Return to the forest and take down the wicked Dryads of Hanjin by transporting them back to their home. Combine your acrobatics and artistic flair as you skillfully guide the Dryads and monsters to their correct destination – the Hall of the Goddess. This Dryad tileset has the ability to help you design some rather cute and adorable tile sets for any RPG project you may be working on. Not just for RPGs, this set can be used in any creative project that supports tilesets, including board games, video games, role playing games and more. Please note: You may not redistribute this tileset for free, but it is entirely acceptable to use in your own commercial games. You may modify the graphics as you see fit. Finally, all this work was created by a single person, so you may see some occasional spelling mistakes! Disclaimer: This pack is to be used for personal and non-commercial use only! If you'd like to use this set commercially, please purchase it. I don't make money from this pack's distribution, so it won't have a price. Where can I find stores that sell 1.5k+ gram of nutmeg (and/or cinnamon) My husband who is highly allergic to cloves loves nutmeg and cinnamon. So I was wondering where I could buy the best stores selling nutmeg/cinnamon. The stores should be closed though (in the UK) A: Please check out They have nutmeg and cinnamon listed. Q: How to get separate count for each item in listview I have the following code to get the count of a listview: Toast.makeText(getApplicationContext(), lv.getCount(), Toast.LENGTH_SHORT).show(); However, I want it to display the count for each item in the listview in separate toast. How can this be achieved? A: You should use.length and see if the count of your array matches with your listview items Toast.makeText(getApplicationContext(), lv.getChildAt(0).getCount()+" "+lv.getChildAt(1).getCount()+" etc...", Toast.LENGTH_SHORT).show(); when you get values from your listview int[] ilm = new int[] {app.getId1(),app.getId2(),app.getId3()}; and then initialize your listview lm = new ArrayList(); int[] id = new int[] {getIdent(),getIdExtra("id1",0),getIdent().getIdExtra("id2",0),getIdent().getIdExtra("id3",0)}; listview.setAdapter(new ArrayAdapter(this,R.layout.simplerow,R.id.imgid,ids)); A: Try this: public void getListview(int groupItem) { ListView lv = getListView(); Toast.makeText(getApplicationContext(),
