A simple and rapid liquid chromatography-tandem mass spectrometry method for the simultaneous quantitation of 13 commonly abused drugs in hair. A liquid chromatography-tandem mass spectrometry (LC-MS/MS) method was developed for the simultaneous quantification of 13 commonly abused drugs (acetaminophen, methamphetamine, cocaine, codeine, dextro-methamphetamine, 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, morphine, amphetamine, 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, 4-methoxymethamphetamine, salvia divinorum and 3,4-methylenedioxyethylamphetamine) in hair. The drugs were extracted from a small amount of hair by using 5 mL of methanol and purified by isotope dilution LC-MS/MS analysis. The analytical results obtained using hair (4.5 mg) spiked with three different concentration of calibrators (5, 10, and 25 ng/mL) demonstrated excellent reproducibility and accuracy for the quantitation of target analytes. The limit of detection and limit of quantification for all the analytes were less than 1 ng/mL and 2 ng/mL, respectively. An inverse calibrator curve was observed for amphetamine at concentrations above 100 ng/mL ($r^2 > 0.99$). The matrix effect was minimal with the enhancement factor ranging from 1.0 to 4.5. The sample preparation steps involved were simple, the method is rapid (analysis time 4 h) and the sample recoveries were $>75\%$ for all the analytes. The proposed research in this training grant application is structured to provide the applicant with the skills and experiences necessary to conduct independent research on the pathogenesis of Charcot-Marie-Tooth disease. Genetic methods will be employed to study a recently discovered form of CMT in which mitochondrial DNA is abnormally small. The proposal is divided into three sections. The first section describes a number of possible mechanisms which could contribute to the small-sized mitochondrial DNA in this subtype of CMT and speculates on the pathogenic implications of mitochondrial dysfunction in this disorder. The second section is devoted to an investigation of the fidelity of DNA replication in the nervous system,
