Note You can use any of these programs to create raster images, although only Photoshop and Elements can use the Channel Mixer, a feature that enables you to mix and blend image layers. # Putting Photos in Perspective Unlike the camera's viewfinder, the LCD screen on most digital SLRs is not wide enough to show a decent-sized image in its entirety. When a camera or lens has a telephoto (close-up) setting, however, it magnifies the subject, bringing distant objects into the picture. On a compact camera, the close-up setting makes everything extremely small, and a single click brings your subject even closer to you. On a DSLR, it's a different story. DSLR lenses are designed with a good amount of zoom, and often a zoom lens _over_ a 35mm lens is needed to capture a similar amount of image area as a 35mm lens. As a result, camera designs are more complex, and they can handle a large zoom range with a greater degree of precision. To take a photo of something that's farther away than the camera's LCD screen, you need a close-up setting (called _macro mode_). There are multiple ways to make a photo more _macro_ (close-up) in Photoshop: * Open the image in Photoshop and crop it. * Cropping the picture means cutting away sections that you don't want to include in the final image. * Manually enlarge the picture using an Image Size tool. * To use the Image Size tool, choose Image → Image Size, or press and hold the ALT (Windows

Adobe Photoshop is a multi-platform graphics editor. Photoshop has a desktop version and a web-based version. The programs share the same user interface and feature set. Photoshop's features include basic and advanced tools for design, graphics, animation, and photo retouching. Photoshop is often used for creating images, modifying images and editing photos, among other things. The program is available for both Windows and macOS. How to open and save an image in Photoshop Elements 10 1. Open the image you want to edit Select Edit > Open. In the dialog box that appears, either browse to the image you want to open, or click Open. Depending on the file size of the image, it may take up to 5 minutes to load. Select File > Save to save the image. The Save As dialog box will appear. Fill in the dialog box to save the image and click Save. 2. Adjust the image

Choose Edit > Adjustments > Brightness/Contrast. Adjust the Brightness/Contrast settings, as needed, to improve the image. Using this tool is similar to using the Exposure, Curves, and Levels tools in previous versions of Photoshop. 3. Adjust the white balance

Choose Edit > Adjustments > White Balance. Adjust the White Balance settings, as needed, to improve the color of the image. White Balance controls the color temperature of your white or black point. White Balance allows you to choose from several presets or you can make adjustments manually. For example, if you are making white balance corrections in a backlit subject, white balance can help you preserve details in the scene. The tools available here are similar to those available in earlier versions of Photoshop. 4.

Adjust the image with the Vibrance, Saturation and Hue Choose Edit > Adjustments > Vibrance, Saturation, and Hue. You can adjust the brightness, color and contrast, or all three. These adjustments modify the appearance of colors in the image, so changes may not be appropriate for images where contrast is important. The Vibrance tool makes the colors in the image brighter by removing color cast. Vibrance also brightens the color range in the image. The Saturation tool makes the colors in the image appear more vivid.

Saturation also brightens the image, but without 05a79cecff

Q: Probability distribution that is independent of time How would I go about finding a probability distribution F of a continuous random variable X that is independent of time? Let $a = X_1$ and $b = X_2$. Then $X = X_1 + X_2$. And I know that X_1 and X_2 are independent. If I take the time continuous random variable t and the fact $X = X_1 + X_2$ and throw away the X_2 I have a continuous random variable W which has a pdf $f_w(w) = f_{X_1}(w)$ but I don't have a function $f_X(x)$ A: Assuming that the random variable X is governed by a Poisson process with intensity $\lambda(t)$, then if X_1 is governed by another Poisson process with intensity $\lambda_1(t)$, then by independence we have that $X = X_1 + X_2$. By the same argument, that W is Poisson with intensity $\lambda(t)$, then $W = X_2$ and we have that $X = X_1 + X_2 = W + X_2$. Because they are both Poisson we have that X_2 is governed by a Poisson process with intensity $\lambda_2(t)$. Therefore the random variable X is governed by a Poisson process with intensity $\lambda(t) + \lambda_2(t)$. This might be easier to compute. As is known, present generations of progressive combustion engines, for example, diesel engines, can have injectors (intake and/or exhaust) that are directly connected to the bodywork of the engine. These injectors comprise a body, a nozzle, the sealing of which is provided by a needle made of a metal material and elastically biased, by a spring, in a position projecting toward the inside of the cylinder. The sealing of the injector is ensured by the elastic assembly provided on the body of the injector. The injector needs to provide a sealing function for the exhaust line (i.e., an exhaust gas treatment line) that the injector covers, as known for example from patent IT 1,89

Q: How to check the availability of tag names in Oracle I'm using an Oracle 10g database and need to know if there are valid tag names. I don't care about case. I tried: `SELECT table_name, TABLE_TYPE, COLUMN_NAME FROM user_tables WHERE table_name LIKE '&tag_name&'` But it doesn't show me any result. If I'm inside a PL/SQL block and I try the same statement, it doesn't show any result. A: Try this: `SELECT table_name, TABLE_TYPE, COLUMN_NAME FROM user_tables WHERE table_name LIKE '&' || 'tag_name&'` Alternatively, in newer versions you can use `REGEXP_LIKE`: `SELECT table_name, TABLE_TYPE, COLUMN_NAME FROM user_tables WHERE table_name REGEXP '&tag_name&' // 20.2.2.17`
`Math.hypot([value1[, value2[, ...]]]) var $export = require('./$.export') , abs = Math.abs; $export($export.S, 'Math', { hypot: function hypot(value1, value2){ // eslint-disable-line no-unused-vars var sum = 0 , i = 0 , $$ = arguments , $$len = $.length , larg = 0 , arg, div; while(i`
