Someone's got to say it... The mission of the Joint Center is to provide a neutral forum for the study of public issues and policies.

We are a research center in cooperation with the academic community and the media; our primary mission is to help people think, and to inform people. We are an independent, nonpartisan organization and have no ties to any political parties, political leaders, government, or media outlets. The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies hosts a series of regular public forums on policy-related issues. We are pleased to bring you this forum on the upcoming midterm elections on November 2, 2010. We are also hosting a special forum, titled "Moral Majority, Values Voters, and the 2010 Midterm Elections." This forum is particularly timely as it will be hosted on the heels of the major anniversaries of two key events in American history: the restoration of voting rights for millions of African Americans and the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. We hope that you will attend one or both of these special forums on November 2. The first forum will address the rise of the Tea Party, the power of the Christian Right, and the effects of the Bush Administration on the Middle East and on America's image abroad. The second forum will discuss the political strength of the Religious Right and the major recent controversies of the Obama Administration. The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, along with editors of the Nation Magazine, hosted a similar forum on the issues presented in this election on November 2, 2010. For this event, the Nation Magazine published a special section of commentary and event details. BREAKING NEWS: The Alabama Senate Judiciary Committee today will be hearing from the more than 100 witnesses, including attorneys, the accused and victim, who will be called to testify about the case of Roy Moore and the allegation of sexual misconduct against him. With less than three weeks until the election, the accuser and the Attorney General have declined to testify. While the Moore campaign is urging Alabamians to vote for him on election day, he and his attorney are refusing to let the claims against him go un rebutted, even as the Judiciary committee is set to vote on several requests to subpoena witnesses and documents. Moore has already been convicted by the Alabama Republican Party and suspended from the Alabama Supreme
