After Montreal was hit with a blizzard, several residents took to social media to complain that the city had done nothing to remove the snow from the streets, leaving them with standing water and ice on the sidewalks. Now with the sun shining at last, some 200 homeless people in Montreal who have been living in their tents, along the sidewalks and on various construction sites in the city, have been told to leave. Story continues below advertisement The snow had to be removed first. The city posted a video Tuesday, showing workers across the city bustling to clear the streets of snow as it measured at a foot at its height. It's estimated about half the snow has been cleaned up, said a city representative in an interview with Global News. Two of the people who live in tents told Global News the good news didn't reach those who don't have homes. "There's ice everywhere and there's not much room to get around. We're stuck," said one man who identified himself as Igor. "I'm cold. I'm afraid to go outside because we're out here in the middle of nowhere and it's freezing. It's scary to tell you the truth," said Sandra. Story continues below advertisement "We were told about 50 people have to leave," Igor said. "They are calling them back to the shelter or another shelter. It's hard for me to understand because I don't have a home. I've been out here since last week. 📍

Grundig Sonoclock 890 Web Firmware Update.California has more billionaires than any other state, according to a report released Thursday by the Bloomberg Billionaires Index, a ranking of the world's richest people using money and assets. The most-wealthy resident in California is Los Angeles-based Oracle co-founder Larry Ellison, who is worth a reported $64 billion. San Francisco-based investor Peter Thiel, the co-founder of the investment firm Founders Fund, comes in second place with $42 billion. The top 10 richest Californians made up half of the world's wealthiest 1,507 people, according to the report. Of them, 585 people have incomes exceeding $1 million. The next seven richest Californians are also from California: Arm & Hammer CEO Irene Rosenfeld ($17.1 billion); Walmart Stores Inc. CEO Rob Walton and his wife, Alice Walton ($16.5 billion); Walt Disney Co. Chairman and CEO Bob Iger ($14.8 billion); Chase CEO Jamie Dimon ($13.5 billion); Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg ($12.8 billion); Redrock Energy Corp. CEO Leon Cooperman ($12.2 billion); and venture capitalist Vinod Khosla ($11.2 billion). The total net worth of the top California billionaires is greater than the GDP of Turkey, or the combined GDPs of all countries in sub-Saharan Africa. Interesting. The top five richest people in the US are from California - and since California is the most successful American state, it seems reasonable to assume that most of the rich citizens of California are a product of California. I do not speak with certainty about the reasons for the success of the people and the state, because I do not wish to speculate, I have never visited California and do not intend to do so. Click to expand... And I haven't lived in California either, but I'd wager the top two are at least partly due to the fact it's one of the world's most liberal, anti-business, anti-energy, anti-business energy, pro-welfare, pro-union states.
